

MASSAGE THERAPY CLASSES

Our curriculum is made to instruct and train a student in therapeutic massage therapy, which includes anatomy and physiology as well as a unique hands-on classroom experience in various types of massage.

Massage Therapy students will explore all the human body systems with a strong focus on the skeletal and muscular systems with their structures and functions.

Once students have successfully mastered the human anatomy, they will then be taught pathology (the study of diseases of the human body) as well as the allied modalities (treatments) such as reflexology, sports massage, hydrotherapy, aromatherapy and hot stone massage.
